Hospice: Hospice care is specialized, compassionate care to help individuals live out their days with peace, comfort, dignity and respect. Hospice does not mean giving up hope, but instead allows patients and their families to make the most of their time together, with a focus on quality of life. The patient beginning hospice care understands that his or her illness is not responding to medical attempts to cure it or to slow the disease's progress. In hospice, attempts to cure the person's illness are stopped.

Home care: Home healthcare services can include a range of in-home medical care to help manage recovery, a chronic condition or pain, as well as non-medical services that provide assistance in managing safety and independence... all in the comfort of home. These services can include: skilled nursing, therapy, personal care services, hospice care, and private duty nursing

Palliative Care: Palliative care, and the medical sub-specialty of palliative medicine, is specialized medical care for people living with serious illness. It focuses on providing relief from the symptoms and stress of a serious illness. The goal is to improve quality of life for both the patient and the family. Palliative care is provided by a team of palliative care doctors, nurses, social workers and others who work together with a patient's other doctors to provide an extra layer of support. It is appropriate at any age and at any stage in a serious illness and can be provided along with curative treatment.
